

12/5/17

5180

4. The School of Hygiene and Public Health is organizing its faculty and in September 1918 will begin its regular work in temporary quarters. The new building will be ready by September 1, 1919. The school promises ultimately: (a) to offer all kinds of public health training, (b) to work out standards of education, (c) to promote research, (d) to form connections with other training centers at home and abroad, (e) to offer public health fellowships on an international scale, (f) to co-operate with Government agencies, (g) to render valuable aid to the International Health Board.